The flag shall be displayed whenever the library is open to the public. Display of the flag also lends visibility to the library. Upon opening the library, the librarian, paid staff, or volunteer shall hang the flag on its holder on the front side of the library building. That person will bring the flag back into the library at the end of the workday, replacing the flag in its designated location inside the building. The librarian, paid staff, and volunteers must remember to ensure that the flag not touching the ground nor be hung at night without a light shining on it.
